

What Is A Community Ambassador?

AHLA has a Health Law Topical Community as well as Setting- and Constituency-based Communities.

A Community Ambassador is a leader who consistently:

- Fosters engagement and builds relationships within a Community(ies).
- Initiates conversations.
- Shares information about events, activities, and volunteer opportunities to encourage participation and involvement.
- Aids community members by answering questions and/or connecting them to others.
- Listens to the community's feedback and relays it to AHLA to improve services or products.
